THE MOST INNOVATIVE AND TECHNOLOGICALLY SOPHISTICATED SUPPRESSORS ON THE MARKET

Our methods and designs come from years of government funded research projects and private industry best practices. All of our internal architectures can only be achieved by additive manufacturing (3D printing), specifically the selective laser melting process to construct a one piece super alloy full spectrum signature reduction suppressor.

BANTAM

At a mere 6 ounces, the compact Bantam is big on suppression. 3D printed from Inconel 718, a high temperature nickel super alloy, this "micro" suppressor was designed specifically to work with 5.56x45 NATO and reduce the sound signature to under the "hearing safe" threshold (140dB) while minimizing the form factor. The average for the 360degree sound profile on the Bantam is 137dB. The Bantam also excels with the new super heavy .223 Rem. subsonic ammo. Additionally, this suppressor is fun for .22LR.
